SECTION 2 — SCOTLAND

Consequent upon the fragmentation of the County Geography of Scotland, due to the creation of a number of autonomous Unitary Authorities and similar bodies and, in view of the relatively few remaining locations hosting locomotives, this Section of this Handbook is now presented in two parts. Industrial sites and Preservation sites.

Defining Areas in accordance with the 1974-1996 "large counties" era, now provides a direct relationship between this volume and the "Historic Handbook" series which is also published by the Industrial Railway Society. The historic books contain the recorded details of all past and recent locomotives, at all known past and present locations, in the areas they cover, together with extensive texts describing the locations and the businesses they served.
